Watermelons

From Disaster, Neb.
to Success, Ark.

What happened in front of the Davis Tourist Court at 2 o'clock this morning was something for a summer vacationist to write home about—and the writing would have covered more than a picture postcard, too.

A man named Kearney from Nebraska was clearing the eastern edge of Hope, going up U.S. 67 with a load of our watermelons—when he met a guy from Success, Ark., who was coming down the road with an empty truck figuring to take on some melons.

Well, the man from Success got his watermelons, but a little too fast to suit the trade. The trucks collided, the 500 Nebraska-bound melons went up in the air, and when the atmosphere cleared there was the smashed Nebraska truck in the middle of a heap of watermelons, quite a few of which, however, had bounced into the machine of the man from Success.

Five hundred is a whole lot of watermelons, and when Supt. Harold Porterfield of the Arkansas State Police, who as an old Hope boy knows his melons, got to the scene he found U.S. 67 more or less blocked.

Quite a few quotable conversations took place about that time.

The man from Success said he had come down here to buy melons but didn't figure on getting loaded in such a hurry.

A Jewish gentleman pulling a load of three automobiles parked them in the roadway and said he had been looking for Arkansas melons all that hot day—and, sure enough, there they were.

And Sgt. Porterfield, by that time pretty hot himself, said if the guy didn't get his load of cars out of the middle of the road there'd be something besides watermelons on the damaged-goods bargain-counter today—which is just as hot as yesterday, but not half so interesting.

Embarassed U. S. Should Make Good on UN Home Loan By S. BURTON HEATH

The United Nations was left in an embarrassing situation when Congress adjourned without approving the $65,000,000 loan to finance a UN skyscraper home in Manhattan. So was the City of New York, which has the job of providing municipal services. And even more embarrassed is Uncle Sam, whose willingness to keep his promises is put in doubt.

Apparently nobody of consequence proposed seriously that we back down on our agreement to make the loan. The matter just got caught in a bit of political jockeying that some, undoubtedly of suspicious mind, think was aimed at influencing the Republicans' choice of a presidential candidate.

The big site for the UN capital has been acquired, and cleared, and is waiting for construction crews. Until the money is provided, it waits in mute reproach of Congress.

In the first place it was not utterly vital that the United Nations make their home in this country, as it mattered much less whether it was in New York or elsewhere.

Once the U.S. was selected, however, a specific site for the capitol acquired, and the loan promised, it became very vital that we make good. It seems desirable that the UN's work be carried on in the relatively democratic atmosphere of a country like ours, but that is a secondary consideration.

The United Nations has had some tough sledding. Oversold by its enthusiastic partisans, it has been utterly unable to do things expected of it but for which it never was fitted. The world peace and unity that it was to help keep have never been established. It has struggled on, doing the best it can to keep alive, while it waits for the Soviet bloc and "democratic" bloc to reconcile their differences or fight them out, so the UN can begin functioning.

If the capital were to be moved to Geneva or elsewhere for the nations' convenience, or because they lack dollars to maintain staffs here, or for some similar mechanical reason, no important damage might be done. But it would be tragic and perhaps fatal if the UN were to leave these shores because it had concluded that the word of the United States in international affairs was no good.

The world's fate depends on us. It depends in large part on the world's ability to work with us and trust us. It depends upon the world's confidence in that ability. Anything that can be used by our enemies to make it appear that the world can't do business with the US is a weapon against world peace.

It would seem that congressional leaders have a prime responsibility to work out with the White House and the United Nations some guarantee against which the UN can get money to start building its New York capital. Given firm enough assurances there must be those who would lend the money until Congress meets and appropriates it.

Ford Raises Salaries, But Defies CIO

Detroit, July 16—(UP)—The Ford Motor Co. today raised the wages of 23,000 salaried employees by $20 to $50 a month, an average of about nine per cent.

At the same time, the company rejected for the present at least any intervention by the federal mediation and conciliation service in its wage deadlock with the CIO United Auto Workers.

The 116,000 production employees represented by the union are seeking a wage increase and other benefits equivalent to about 21 cents an hour.

"The Ford Motor Co. stands ready to meet with union negotiators at any time," Henry Ford II, president of the firm, said in a statement. "We appreciate the offer of the United States Conciliation Service but we always have been able to solve our differences with the union and we prefer to follow this policy until every possibility is exhausted between the nation and ourselves."

The change was announced by the Phils office here. President R. M. Carpenter, Jr., and Nathan (Babe) Alexander, the club's publicity director, were enroute here by plane from St. Louis.

The banjo, as we know it today, was evolved and developed by the Negroes of the south.

Berlin Crisis Takes Europe Nearer War

By WES GALLAGHER

Berlin, July 16 (AP)—Only two courses of action have any hope of breaking the Soviet blockade which is strangling this city and bringing Europe closer to war than at any time since Munich.

The first is the use of western powers military forces to crash the land blockade.

The second is retaliatory action by the West in other parts of the world which would make it too costly for the Soviet Union to continue its Berlin policy.

This is the common belief of the Western Allies and the Germans who have seen the Russian action at first hand for three years. They believe further that the Soviet Union has killed international diplomacy in the accepted sense.

Soviet relection of the western powers' notes proposed none here. No one dealing with the Russians in Berlin in the past three years has any hope that any note of protest would have any effect on Soviet policy. This includes any United Nation or world court action.

Failing to achieve what she wanted in Germany at the conference table, Russia has abandoned mediation for direct pressure propaganda.

In the simplest terms 2,000,000 Germans and 25,000 Western Allies in Berlin as being held as pawns by Russia to achieve her aims in Germany.

These aims are principally two. The first is establishment of a strong German government on the Soviet model dominated by the Communists.

The second is a Soviet voice in the economic life of Germany, primarily the industrial Ruhr.

The squeeze on Berlin was not brought about by the prolonged reform or the setting up of a western German government. It started months ago when the Russians first cut off Allied military trains.

When this was successful, the Russians began imposing other controls, waiting each time to test western reaction.

Abandoning western currency in Berlin wouldn't settle the issue. It would merely precipitate new demands.

The Western Allies cannot continue the air lift to Berlin forever. First the cost is enormous. Second, it is bound to cost more lives.

At best it can give enough rationing and perhaps enough warmth to 200,000 Germans to live a dismal existence in ruins.

He arranged to return to his headquarters on the Isle of Rhodes by plane, leaving here Saturday.

Bernadotte notified Arabs and Jews of the new cease-fire order and applied to the United States.

France and Belgium for what the U. N. described as the "initial" part of 300 military observers regular to supervise the truce.

The most drastic measure to smash the blockade would be to send an armored column up the international highway leading to the city, announcing to the Russians that the Western Allies will fight their way through if necessary.

This would leave it up to the Soviet Union whether they want war or peace.

There is every indication they want peace and would not fight.

However, the risk of war is always there.

The second action that could be taken would be for the western powers to exert the same type of "technical" squeeze on the Soviet Union in the rest of the world that the Russians are exerting.

Technical difficulties might be found with the accreditation of Soviet representatives in Japan, making it necessary for them to leave. Soviet ships could be held indefinitely in quarantines in U.S. harbors.

The Panama canal could develop the same type of trouble as Germany's canal leading to Berlin.

It is believed here that until measures of this kind are taken making the Soviet Union weigh the cost of the blockade against losses elsewhere that no end can be achieved to the stalemate.

Two Groups B-29 Bombers Sent to England as Europe Faces Growing War Threat

Washington, July 16—(UP)—The United States today sent two groups of B-29 bombers to England tripling its heavy bomber strength in Europe in the face of deepening crisis in Berlin.

The airforce announced that the two groups of 30 Superforts each are now enroute to British bases. It said that they will remain a "short time" and that the operation is part of a long range flight program the air force has been conducting for some time with the giant bombers.

But despite the terse announcement the flight of the B-29's was regarded here as another move to strengthen Allied powers in their efforts to break the Russian Berlin blockade.

The second is retaliatory action by the West in other parts of the world which would make it too costly for the Soviet Union to continue its Berlin policy.

This is the common belief of the Western Allies and the Germans who have seen the Russian action at first hand for three years.

They believe further that the Soviet Union has killed international diplomacy in the accepted sense.

So the Russian have hinted at increased Soviet fighter plane activity on the air corridor to Berlin.

The presence of the B-29's may persuade them to slow up on that project.

It was pointed out here, also, that no European country, including Russia, saw the B-29's in action in World War II. They fought only in the Pacific.

The B-29's are armed with heavy machine guns, but are not carrying bombs on the flight to Europe.

under full four-power control.

Officials remained silent on whether any of the B-29's will be used on the Berlin air supply run. None of the present force, based at Fürstenfeldbruck, Germany, have yet been used to fly supplies to the beleaguered Western-power zone of Berlin.

It was believed here that the presence of as many as 90 of the huge bombers might serve to discourage new Soviet moves in the Berlin crisis.

Holt, Thompson and Fleming Speak in Hope

Southwest Arkansas had a full program of campaign speeches yesterday afternoon and last night when three candidates for governor appeared in Hope.

Jack Holt, former attorney general, Little Rock, presented his plan to finance highway construction out of the state's invested securities speaking to a crowd of 250 persons at Second and Main streets at 4 p.m. He was introduced by Marshall Hendrix, program director of KXAR, which broadcast the 40-minute address.

Horace Thompson, former collector of internal revenue, Little Rock, addressed the courthouse block yesterday afternoon, also, that no European country, including Russia, saw the B-29's in action in World War II. They fought only in the Pacific.

good earth and setting up laws that would keep it in good order, and its up to better cooperation in the future in preserving the earth and abiding by God's laws if we do not want to be punished with hunger, war and all eventual end to His civilization. Farmers from the four-states area were told here today at the opening session of a three-day soil conservation short course.

They heard that message from a college president, a preacher farmer and an agricultural expert. First, President Charlie Wilkins of State A and M College here stressed that soil conservation is a common problem important to the farmer because it is from the soil that he earns his living. Important to the business man because his business is dependent upon the money brought in by the farmers after they have sold their raw products, important to the manufacturers from the east and important to the average citizen because his welfare is dependent upon the economic prosperity and general health of his neighbors.

Then the Rev. Conrad Glover, Baptist preacher from Sheridale, Ark., who also is a conservation farmer, placed the burden of caring for God's earth squarely on the shoulders of the farmers. God is the author of natural laws, and they all function normally except where man transgresses. The penalty of the violation of the law seen in the gulleys on the hillside, the deserted village church and the diseased human body. Soil is one of our great world banks in which is deposited the wealth of the nation and from which all material wealth and life itself is to be drawn and perpetuated, Mr. Glover said. God has put 14 essential elements in the soil, and we need 14 elements to keep us alive. When these elements are allowed to be leached out of the soil by water running off the land, we are sinning against ourselves and future generations. He said that the future of mankind would be determined by the future of the soil.

And then an agricultural expert, Dr. Lippert S. Ellis, dean of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, said that soil conservation is merely a simple matter of the use of some good practices by part of the farmers, but is good land use based on the best that is known with respect to balanced farming. It is related to the system of farm tenure, agricultural credit, and agricultural research and teaching and to national agricultural policy. He said world peace can be maintained or lost by the American farmer, and won, if through proper conservation and balanced farming, enough foodstuffs are produced to feed a hungry world.

R. P. Bartholomew, of the Arkansas extension service, presided at the afternoon session. At the night meeting, motion pictures on balanced agriculture and soil conservation were shown to the more than 200 farmers attending the conference from Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma counties. The program Thursday will feature discussions of proper land use, crop rotation, pasture utilization and fertilization with a field trip to nearby farms during the afternoon.

NEW YORK COTTON

New York, July 16.—(P)—Cotton futures turned irregular in slow trading today. Scattered hedging and liquidation were offset by mill buying. Some commission house demand was attracted by prospects of a higher loan on the next cotton crop. Dulness in textiles and spinning along with excellent private crop reports discouraged buying.

It would mean, they explained, that Dixie electors could vote for anyone they please, presumably to rally behind one man.

They did that at the Philadelphia convention and gave 263 votes to Senator Richard Russell of Georgia.

Who will get the States' Rights nomination for president is another question. Gov. Ben Laney of Arkansas and Gov. Wright are among those prominently mentioned. Senator Russell has said he's out of it.

shipboard training program today if the weather will permit. So far, high winds and choppy seas have kept the muscle men and women of the team from doing anything but limbering up exercises. But officials today as the America moved along the Atlantic seaboard still five days from Southampton.

The team received its official Olympic uniforms yesterday, each athlete getting his or hers in attractive fitted traveling cases made of heavy cardboard. Each member received two sets, one for regular wear and one for parades. They were allowed to bring only two handbags of luggage of their own on the trip.

Each of the uniforms was emblazoned with the U. S. Olympic emblem, with its red, white, and blue and five-ring Olympic symbol.

About the only teams not intent on getting in some practice while still on ship are the basketball squad and the track and field squad. The basketballers are taking a few days rest to avoid becoming overtrained. The runners, jumpers, and throwers are still resting from the strenuous qualifying trials.

A three course luncheon was served on small tables centered with summer flowers.

McKenzie, Mrs. Ralph Gordon, Mrs. Tonny Cruse, Mrs. George Christopher, Mrs. Charlie Scott, Mrs. Jack Robey, Mrs. Arthur Johnson, Mrs. Jimmie Duke, Mrs. Pundexter Whitaker, Mrs. James W. McMahon, Mrs. E. J. Smith, Mrs. Darrell March, Mrs. Wat W. White, Jr., and Mrs. Dan Pittman.

Personal

Mrs. Bonnie Marklehatton of Texarkana has returned to her home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Max Bryant.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Coleman have as their guests this week their daughter, Mrs. Earl May and daughter, Jil of Arkansas City.

Fred Poachy who is attending summer school at Henderson spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Poachy and his son, Charlie Sheats of Arkadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Davis, Mrs. E. W. Ruff and Mrs. Nettie Hesterly are enjoying a motor trap on the Gulf coast.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hayes and son William Jr. of Oklahoma spent Tuesday with Mr. Hay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Hayes.

That story is commonly emphasized as an example of friendship and womanly devotion. It is all the more remarkable because it relates to daughter-in-law and mother-in-law, who don't always get on so harmoniously. But the story is a great deal more than that. If Ruth is a type of the loyal, devoted woman, Naomi, the mother-in-law, is a type of womanly courage in adversity—the type so common in the pioneer history of our country.

Wayne, Fonda and Shirley Temple Stars

With John Wayne, Henry Fonda, Shirley Temple and Pedro Armendariz co-starring at the head of an imposing cast, "Fort Apache," starring Sunday at the Saenger, the John Ford-Merian C. Cooper production for RKO Radio, presents a striking drama of U.S. Cavalry versus the Apaches in 1870 Arizona.

Wayne plays an experienced frontier officer at a lonely Army post. Fonda, an arrogant lieutenant-colonel from the East, sent to take command of the post, refuses to take Wayne's sound advice on dealing with the wily Chief Cochise.

Fonda also objects to his daughter's romance with a young officer at the fort, which makes him even more unpopular.

When Cochise and his tribe rebel at the crookedness of an Indian agent, Fonda seizes the chance to trap the Apaches and make a name for himself in Washington. Wayne warns him that his scheme will fail, but Fonda, contemptuous of the Indian's fighting ability, goes ahead with dramatic results.

Much of the exciting action of the picture was filmed in the famous Monument Valley, where director Ford made his earlier "Stagecoach". The climax, with its savage pitched battle between a cavalry squadron and the Apache warriors, is said to be one of the most thrilling scenes ever photographed.

John Agar, husband of Shirley Temple, makes his film debut as a young West Pointer, and the featured cast includes Ward Bond,

George O'Brien, Victor McLaglen,

Anna Lee, Irene Rich, Dick Foran,

Guy Kibbee, Grant Withers and

Mae Marsh. Frank S. Nugent wrote the screenplay from a story by James Warner Bellah.

Raft, who co-produced the film with Sam Bischoff, lured Miss Havoc away from Broadway to play her first and long sought-after straight dramatic role. The presence of Miss Carter, a relative newcomer to filmdom with only two small parts behind her, in the cast is also due to the star who has a reputation for gambling on newcomers.

His sure-fire ability to spot potential talent is well-known in Hollywood with the late Carole Lombard,

Ava Gardner and Janet Blair, among others, gaining stardom as a result of Raft's sponsorship.

The picture also features a new contender for Hit Parade honors

the title song, "Intrigue," written especially for the film, which songstress Nan Wynn performs.

This is Raft's first production venture, the forerunner of a series of three films which he and Bischoff plan, all directed by his favorite, Edwin L. Marin under whom Raft has worked four times already.

The supporting cast includes Tom

Tully, Marvin Miller, Dan Seymour
